

Educators' Interests

Feature Activities

Often faculty members take time out for special interests. Mr. Carl Crosskno, special education teacher, repairs and collects clocks. Several teachers have talent in the field of music, including Mr. Marvin Trent, English teacher, who plays a guitar often for his classes. He entertains his students while teaching them a unit about ballads. Those possessing several abilities are not uncommon as Mrs. Norma Brown, social studies teacher, enjoys motorcycling, photography and scuba diving. She prefers a variety instead of having just one hobby. Mrs. Jeannette Howell, special education teacher, has the diverse pastime of having three grandchildren to spend her time with, plus her membership in a sorority.

Developing the knowledge one already possesses can be interesting. Mrs. Glenda Coley, art teacher, continuously learns new crafts not only for personal pleasure, but to teach her students the same skills as well. Mr. Jim Ware, history teacher, travels to different areas in the world during summer vacation and can relate his experiences to students.

A. Mrs. Judy McCoy and Mrs. Sharon McCasland, attendance clerks, decorate the building during the Christmas holidays. B. Mr. John Bennett, band director, spends a portion of his weekend cleaning up his front yard with help from Danny Kershaw, junior. Band members wrap his house annually the night before marching contest. C. Mr. Larry Arnhold, drama and history teacher, adjusts the volume on the record player at an after school play practice. D. Continuing her interests outside of the classroom Mrs. Glenda Coley, art teacher, irons a design on the front of a T-shirt. E. Mr. Carl Crosskno, special education teacher, rewinds one of his antique clocks in order to keep it in good running condition.
